☞ Controllers' Office, at the Athenæum, Sixth street, below Walnut, Philadelphia. The Stated Meetings of the Board are held on the Second Tuesday of each month, at 3 o'clock, P.M.

REPORT.

The Controllers of the Public Schools, in presenting their Thirty-seventh Annual Report, are happy to state, that the schools under their care during the past year, have been in a prosperous and growing condition.

The whole number of schools in 1855 was 303, namely, 1 High School, 1 Normal School, 56 Grammar Schools, 47 Secondaries, 156 Primaries, and 42 Unclassified schools.

The whole number of Teachers was 935, of whom 81 were Males, and 854 Females.

The number of scholars belonging to the schools was 54,813, of whom 28,152 were boys, and 26,661 were girls. These items, as compared with those of the year previous, show an increase of no less than 15 schools, 59 teachers, and 2,740 scholars.

Three School Houses, which were reported in 1854 as under progress, have been completed in 1855, and are now occupied. These are the following: the James Pollock School House, Secondary and Primary, in the First Section, in Fitzwater street above Fifteenth, erected at a cost of $9,187 04; the Manayunk

School House, Primary, in the Twenty-first Section, at a cost of $8,124, of which $7,053 13 was paid in 1855, the rest having been paid the year previous; and the Bustleton School House, Grammar and Primary, in the Twenty-third Section, at a cost of $6,800, of which $3,588 50 was paid in 1855, the rest having been paid in 1854.

In the latter part of 1853 and the beginning of 1854, the subject of an increase in the salaries of the teachers engaged very seriously the attention of the Controllers and Directors. These salaries had been fixed about fifteen years before, when the cost of living was from one-third to one-half less than it is now.

In consequence of the compensation for teaching in the Public Schools remaining stationary, while that in other employments had largely risen, the best teachers were gradually leaving the schools, while the number of teachers applying for employment, as well as the standard of their qualifications, were constantly diminishing. It was deemed, therefore, sound policy, no less than strict justice, to make a general advance in the rates of compensation. This advance, after having been discussed for several months, was finally adopted in the early part of 1854, and went into effect from and after the first of April of that year. Only two quarters of these increased salaries were actually paid in 1854, namely, those due the first of July, and the first of October. As the whole amount of the increase was nearly $50,000, one-half of this amount, say $25,000, first showed itself in the increased expenditure for salaries in 1855.

The increase in the salaries of the High School was only 10 per cent. In the other schools, the salaries from $500 to $1,000 inclusive, were raised 20 per cent; those below $500, were raised 25 per cent. This still left 198 teachers at a salary of only $200, and 146 at a salary of $225. At the present rates for board, clothing and other necessary expenses, it was found exceedingly difficult for an educated young woman to live decently and comfortably on the salaries named. The Controllers, therefore, judged it expedient to raise these lowest salaries still further, so that no teacher in the Public Schools, who gave her whole time to the service, should be paid a less sum than $250 per annum. This final increase amounted to $13,550, and was adopted by the Controllers on the third of February, 1855.

The increase of 2,740 new scholars, during the year, required the employment of 59 additional teachers, which, at the rates already existing, still further swelled the item of salaries by about $15,000.

The total amount expended by the Controllers during the year was $520,786 22. Of this amount, three quarters were for salaries and other expenses incurred during the first three quarters of the year 1855, and the other quarter was for the salaries and other expenses incurred from October 1st to December 31st, 1854. In this the Controllers did as they have always done heretofore. They have always been in the habit of paying the teachers quarterly, namely, in the middle of the months of January, April, July and October, for services rendered up to the last day of the month preceding. The bills are not presented until the service has been actually rendered. They are made up to the last day of the previous quarter, are presented on or after the first of the month, pass the revision of the sectional boards of Directors, and the committees of the Board of Controllers, and finally of the Controllers themselves, who meet statedly on the second Tuesday of each month. This always brings the actual payment of the quarter bills to about the middle of the month after the quarter has expired. Such has been the uniform course of business for thirty-seven years, namely, since the first organization of the Public Schools in 1818. Although, therefore, the amount actually expended in 1855, (viz: $520,786 22) was for salaries &c., of three quarters earned in 1855, and of one quarter earned in 1854, the whole amount represents accurately one entire year. It may, therefore, be taken as a proper basis of reckoning, either in comparing one year with another, or in estimating the annual rates of expense.

The expenses of the last year, as compared with those of the year previous, are as follows:

	1854. Dolls. Cts.	1855. Dolls. Cts.	DIMINUTION Dolls. Cts.	INCREASE. Dolls. Cts.

		456,719 83	. . . .	31,835 02
Total increase, ...	. . . .	64,066 39	. . . .	64,066 39

The principal item of this increase is that of the salaries of the teachers, which has been already explained. It grew out of a general measure, originating in 1853 and 1854, and not carried into its full effect until 1855.

In estimating the rate of tuition, as furnished by the Public Schools, it is obvious, that the annual expenses should be classified, and placed under appropriate heads.

It has been customary, heretofore, to divide the expenses into two principal heads, namely, those which are essentially temporary, as Salaries, House-keeping, Fuel, &c: and those which are permanent, and the use of which remains from year to year. Under the latter head are included Building Lots, School Houses, Additions and Repairs to the same, Furnaces and Stoves, and Furniture generally. All these items are of the nature of a permanent investment, the annual interest only of the aggregate amount being chargeable to each year. The sums spent for these purposes in 1855, were for

New School Houses,	$19,828 67
Additions and Repairs,	28,728 30
Furnaces and Stoves,	7,652 44
Furniture,	8,826 50
Total,	$65,035 91

The aggregate of the sums previously expended for these purposes from 1818, to December 1854, (See Appendix) amounted to $1,171,787 70

Adding the amount for 1855,	65,035 91
Total,	$1,236,823 61

We have a total permanent investment in Lots, Houses, and Furniture of $1,236,823 61. The interest on this sum at 5 per cent. (which is as much as other holders of real estate are wont to nett after deducting taxes and repairs) is $61,841 18. This sum of $61,841 18 is really the rent at which the Public Schools in 1855 had the use of the School Houses owned by the City. The other rents (for Houses owned by individuals, and leased by the Controllers, including also Ground Rents and Water Rents) were $25,558 60. The total amount of these two items chargeable to the past year, under the general head of Rent, as just explained, is $87,399 78.

The other heads of school expenses, besides Rent, are Tuition, Books and Stationery, and Incidentals.

Under the head of Incidentals, the Controllers include all expenses of every kind not included under other heads. These incidental expenses are for Fuel, the Superintendence and Cleaning of School Houses, the Clerk hire, Printing, and other petty expenses of the Sectional Boards of School Directors, and the General expenses of the Board of Controllers, including in the latter the Salaries of the Secretary and Assistant, the Printing, Advertising and other office expenses of every kind. These several items taken together swell up a large amount. It should be recollected, however, that there is a large amount of business to be done. There are no less than 186 School Houses, each of which has to be kept properly cleaned and warmed while in constant use by more than fifty-four thousand children. The salaries of the House-keepers employed are as small as it is possible to make them, and at the same time to secure the services of competent and responsible persons for the care and safe keeping of the public property. Each of the twenty-four sectional Boards of Directors have stated monthly meetings, besides weekly meetings of Committees, involving the necessity of a large amount of writing. For this an allowance of $100 to each section, has been granted for Clerk hire.

The whole amount expended in 1855, for Incidentals, may be recapitulated as follows:

Fuel, ...	$20,140 25
Superintendence and cleaning of School Houses, Clerk hire, Printing, and other petty expenses of the twenty-four Sectional Boards, .	36,844 71
General Expenses of the Board of Controllers,	12,081 14
	$69,066 10

The various items of cost, therefore, in teaching the pupils of the Public Schools, are reducible to these four heads, namely,

1. Tuition (Salaries of Teachers.)

2. Books and Stationery.

3. Incidentals.

4. Rent of School Houses, including in the latter, not only payment for those buildings leased from individuals, but also interest on the cost of those owned by the city.

These items divided severally by 54,813, the whole number of pupils, show the precise rate of cost under each head to have been as follows:

Tuition, (salaries of teachers),	$294,316 19	rate per pupil,	$5 37
Books and Stationery,	51,320 26	"	94
Incidentals, - -	69,066 10	"	1 26
Rent, - -	87,399 78	"	1 59
Total expense of educating a pupil for one year, -			$9 16

This statement includes everything, of every kind, legitimately chargeable. It includes, moreover, the expenses of the High School and the Normal School, as well as of the other schools.

When we call to mind the superior character of the instruction and the high state of discipline in the Public Schools, and consider that for so small a rate of expense,—only $9 16 per annum, (a sum not so large as the ordinary cost of books alone in private schools)—every child in this city may receive a really excellent education, and that more than fifty-four thousand of the children of this city are now receiving such an education; the Controllers cannot but feel, that they have reason to congratulate their fellow citizens upon the condition of this important department of the public service, and to claim for it results commensurate with the expense.

It is not easy to obtain with entire exactness the rate of expense for each particular class of schools. Omitting, however, the item of rent, the rate for the three remaining heads, (tuition, books and incidentals,) may be reached approximately.

The Grammar, Secondary, Primary and Unclassified schools, (leaving out the High School and the Normal School,) contain 53,772 pupils, and have cost for the year, under the three heads just named, as follows:

Tuition, (salaries of teachers),	$269,597 86	rate per pupil,	$5 01
Books and Stationery,	49,754 09	"	92
Incidentals, - - -	66,101 62	"	1 23
Total, - - - - - - - -			$7 16

The Normal School contains, besides its 210 Normal pupils, 230 children in its School of Practice. Whatever these 230 children would have cost, if taught in one of the Grammar or Secondary schools, ought to be deducted from the sum total of the expenses of the Normal School, in order to ascertain the amount legitimately chargeable to the Normal pupils. The average rates of expense in the other schools have just been shown. According to these rates, the 230 children in the School of Practice would have cost, had they been taught elsewhere, $1,152 30 for tuition, $211 60 for books and stationery, and $282 90 for incidentals. Deducting these sums from the gross amount charged to the Normal School, we have the following results as the legitimate expenses of the 210 Normal pupils:

Tuition, (salaries of teachers),	$3,777 70	rate per pupil,	$17 99
Books and Stationery,	570 72	"	2 71
Incidentals, - -	574 47	"	2 74
Total, - - - -			$23 44

The number of pupils attending the High School has been 601, and the expenses have been as follows:

Tuition, (salaries of teachers),	$19,788 33	rate per pupil,	$32 92
Books and Stationery,	783 85	"	1 30
Incidentals, - -	2,107 11	"	3 50
Total, - - - -			$37 72

The High School continues to be managed with efficiency and economy. It has already, in the brief period of its existence, admitted 3,477 pupils to the advantages of its course of instruction, and those young gentlemen who have spent any considerable time within its walls, are generally regarded with special favor by the business men of the city. The intense competition among the pupils of the lower schools, to become partakers of its benefits, is of itself an immense advantage. It produces a vigorous and healthful activity throughout the system. The Controllers could not but regard any attempt to injure the High School, or impair its efficiency, as a serious blow aimed at the entire system of Public Schools.

The benefits of the Normal School in bringing forward a constant succession of well qualified teachers, are obvious. The institution is conducted with fidelity and skill, and enjoys the continued confidence of the Controllers.

The Controllers take pleasure also in speaking with marked commendation of the condition of the grammar, secondary and primary schools under their care, and they cordially commend these institutions to the confidence of their fellow citizens.

It is a matter of deep regret that most of the Night Schools, both for males and females, while in the full tide of success, had to be closed for the want of adequate appropriations. The night schools, for males particularly, are believed to be effecting, silently, but surely, a most important and salutary reform among the class of persons for whose benefit they were designed. The number of adult persons applying for the advantages of the night schools, has never been so large as during the last year. Many of these persons are entirely ignorant of the first rudiments of an English education, not knowing how either to read, write or cypher. They are for the most part engaged in mechanical pursuits during the day, and receive with manifest gratitude, the privilege of attending school at night. How much better that they should be thus engaged, preparing to become useful and respectable citizens, than that they should be attending those other schools, to be found at every corner, where idle young men learn, from experienced teachers, those lessons of vice and crime which bring not only ruin to themselves, but irreparable damage and loss to the community.

By order of the Board,

T. G. HOLLINGSWORTH,
President.

REPORT.

To Henry Herbert, George P. Mercer, Alfred W. Green, Richard R. Montgomery, and Benjamin T. Warren, Esquires, Committee on the High School.

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL,
February 15, 1856.

GENTLEMEN:

In obedience to the regulations of the Controllers of the Public Schools, I submit to you my Annual Report of the Central High School for the thirty-fourth and thirty-fifth terms, ending severally July 12, 1855, and February 14, 1856.

On the 10th of September, 1855, the institution experienced a serious loss in the resignation of Prof. E. Otis Kendall. This gentleman was one of the original Professors appointed at the first organization of the school in 1838. He had been engaged in the service of the school during the whole of those seventeen years, with equal advantage to the pupils, and acceptance to the public, while his acknowledged reputation as a mathematician and astronomer, brought much eclat to the institution. The chair of Mathematics in the University of Pennsylvania having been offered him, with a salary about one-third greater, and with duties at least one-third less, he accepted the same, followed by the universal and deep regrets of those who had so long been his associates, as well as of the pupils and alumni of the High School.

On the 29th of September, 1855, the Controllers, on the recommendation of the High School Committee, elected, as the successor of Prof. Kendall, James M'Clune, A. M., of Rockville, Penna. Prof. M'Clune is an alumnus of the College of New Jersey, where he graduated in 1835, with the highest honors of the institution, and where he remained some time as a resident graduate studying the higher mathematics under the direction of Professors Dod and Henry. He has been engaged most of the time since his graduation in teaching, first at the head of a classical Academy at Lewistown, in this State, then as the Principal of the Harrison Grammar School of this city, and lastly as Principal of a classical school in Rockville. In these various institutions, he became favorably known by his skill both in discipline and instruction, and he was recommended to the Controllers in the strongest terms by Prof. Joseph Henry, of the Smithsonian Institute, by President Maclean, of Princeton College, and other gentlemen of similar standing. Prof. M'Clune entered upon the duties of his office on the 8th of October. The success of his instructions during the term just closed has been such as to justify the high expectations formed by the Controllers at the time of his appointment.

In the construction of the building, some things had necessarily to be left to the test of actual experience. Among these, was the question of heating. The experience of the first winter, that of 1854 and '5, developed the fact that the amount of heat generated in the four large heaters used in the original construction, was not sufficient to warm the building adequately in extremely cold weather. This has been remedied by the construction of a new heater in the centre of the basement, and by placing additional inside doors at the main entrances, to be used only in winter, so as to exclude the rush of cold air when the doors are opened by persons passing in and out. It has also been found necessary to continue the main eastern staircase from the second floor to the third, so that there is now an entire double flight of stairs, in the main hall, all the way from the first floor to the third. These two changes are all that an experience of two years in the school has found necessary. The building, therefore, may be considered as finished.

The building was intended to accommodate 600 students, and was fitted up and furnished with desks and apparatus of every kind for that number; and on occupying it, the Committee on the School passed a general resolution, authorizing me, at each semi-annual examination, to admit as many as would be necessary to make the whole number 600, at the beginning of each term. In accordance with these instructions, a class of 124 was admitted July 7, 1855, and of 141, Feb. 9, 1856. This makes the whole number admitted, up to the present date (Feb. 15, 1856), 3,477. The whole number belonging to the School at the beginning of each of the terms included in this Report, was 601. The number at the present time is 600.

Of the pupils attending school during the last year, 107, or 18 per cent. of the whole, took the English course, while 494, or 82 per cent. of the whole, chose the Principal course. This is the more noticeable, because a much larger proportion of the pupils than is to be found in the English or two years' course, leave school before the expiration of two years. Indeed, more than half the pupils leave before that time. The fact shows that parents, even where their sons have but a short time to stay in the school, prefer that even for that short time, they should enjoy the benefits of the Principal course, as long as they do stay. I call attention to the fact, because it is often supposed that all who leave the school at or before the end of two years, have pursued the English course. The truth is quite otherwise. Of those who leave from the lower classes, quite as many are pursuing the Principal course as the English.

The attendance of the pupils of the High School is, in my opinion, worthy of remark. I take the greater pleasure in quoting it, because, according to my experience and observation, there is no more certain test of the condition of a school than the state of its attendance. No one fact shows more conclusively the interest which the pupils take in their studies, or the general efficiency of the instruction and discipline in the several departments. From an examination which I made several years ago into the records of the Public Schools under the Lancasterian system, I found that the average rate of absenteeism for a series of years was more than 33 per cent. In some of those same schools now, the absenteeism has been reduced to a rate that is almost nominal, not more than 4 or 5 per cent. In the High School, during the last term, the highest rate of absenteeism was only 3 per cent., namely, during the first month, when a considerable number of pupils were away during the whole of the first week, through a misapprehension of the day on which the session was to begin. The next highest rate was during the extremely cold weather, in the month of January. Even then, it rose to only 2·97 per cent. The lowest rate was during the fourth month of the term, when it was only 1·5 per cent. The average rate of absenteeism for the whole term was 2·2 per cent. The greatest number of absences on any one day was on the occasion of the great snow storm, on the 3d of January, when forty-six pupils were absent. The best attendance during the term was on the 25th of October, and the 20th of November, on each of which days there were only three absent out of the whole school. There were seven days in the term, on which there were only 5 absent. The class whose attendance was best was Division A. One of their number was absent for two weeks, with the varioloid. With this exception, there were out of the whole class only 3 absent during all the first month, only 1 in the fourth month, 1 in the fifth month, and none at all in the second and third months. In connection with these facts, it should be borne in mind that many of our pupils have to come a distance of several miles, and that the average distance which they have to come is more than a mile and a half.

There has been no material change in the course of studies, and no change at all in the order of exercises, since the last Annual Report. At the end of each term, the pupils are subjected to a written examination, as heretofore, upon all the studies of the term. The distinctions and awards of merit, resulting from those examinations, are publicly announced on Commencement Day.

The summer Commencement was held at the Musical Fund Hall, on the 12th of July, 1855. The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. Francis Hodgson, D.D. An Introductory Address was delivered by George M. Wharton, Esq. From the Graduating class, the Honorary Address was delivered by Reese F. Alsop; the Salutatory Address, by John S. Bradford, and the Valedictory by Frank Wolfe. Other speeches were made by Thomas Ridgely, Henry A. Converse, William M. Gallaher, Clifford P. MacCalla, Christopher W. Knauff, George S. Moyer, William H. Lewis, Wm. Ellery C. Coxe, Edmund D. Randolph, Horace B. Pearson, and George H. Winslow.

Of the 601 students who had attended school during the term, 121 were declared meritorious, and 69 distinguished; 29 received testimonials of having completed partial courses, of not less than two years; and 30, having completed the full four years' course, were admitted to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The degree of Master of Arts was also conferred upon 14 graduates of the four years' course, of not less than five years' standing.

The winter Commencement was held at the Musical Fund Hall, on the 14th of February, 1856. The exercises were opened with prayer by the Rev. Thomas Malcolm. The Honorary Address was delivered by John S. Jenks; the Salutatory, by Chester D. Hartranft, and the Valedictory by J. Livingston Reese. Other speeches were delivered by John J. Hargadon, Joseph H. Chubb, Cornelius C. Widdis, William L. Wilson, George W. Morgan, William B. Gluyas, Charles T. Murphy, Alfred T. Breinig, Charles Buckwalter, and George E. C. Gluyas.

The Alumni Address in the evening, was delivered at the same place, by William H. Hibbard, A. M.

Of the 601 students attending school, 116 were declared meritorious, and 61 distinguished; 41 received testimonials of partial courses, and 21 received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The degree of Master of Arts was conferred upon 11 graduates of not less than five years' standing.

On three successive evenings of the week before Commencement, public exercises in composition and declamation are held in the large lecture room of the High School. The compositions on these occasions, are written extempore, on subjects assigned on the spot, by some one in the audience. The subject is announced, and the writers begin to compose just before the declamation commences. When the declamation, which lasts about an hour, is ended, each writer is called upon to rise in his place, and read what he has written during the time of the speaking. These exercises are a better test of the intellectual training which the pupils have received, than any other which the school affords. They are very numerously attended. Exercises of this kind were held at the close of each of the terms included in this report. The names of the writers and speakers are given in the Appendix.

No part of the proceedings of the school are regarded with greater interest than the examinations for admission. No part consequently is guarded with greater vigilance. Every effort that the ingenuity of those entrusted with its government can devise, has been used to prevent the possibility of favoritism, and to make the examination in all respects fair and impartial. As no change has been made in the mode of examination, and as this mode has been frequently described with great minuteness in former reports, I shall not dwell upon it now. I will only remark that the entire examination, with the single exception of Reading, is by means of written questions and answers; that these written answers, on which alone a candidate is admitted or rejected, are carefully arranged for reference, together with the original marks of the examiners, and bound up in volumes for the convenient inspection of parents, teachers, directors, or other interested parties; that these papers are at all times open to examination, and that the Professors cordially invite any amount or degree of scrutiny in the matter, asking only that fair allowance may be made for the imperfections of human judgment.

For full particulars in regard to the results of the late examinations, as well as in regard to the distinctions and awards of merit for the two terms included in this report, I refer the committee to the accompanying documents.

Very respectfully submitted,

JOHN S. HART,

Principal.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

This remains as described in previous reports; the working of the school requiring no modification of the course of instruction, which was fully described in the last report.

All the branches necessary to constitute a sound English education, are comprehended in the studies pursued in the Normal School; affording a more complete and thorough course than that of any school where subjects are not studied in reference to teaching them. As heretofore, the first part of the course, which occupies one or two terms, according to the ability of the pupils, or their attainments at the time of admission, is appropriated in confirming, methodizing, and extending their acquirements in the subjects of instruction in the Grammar Schools.

During the second part, embracing the remainder of the course, the pupils are occupied in the study of a higher range of subjects, and in becoming theoretically and practically acquainted with the art of teaching, and school government, by actual teaching in the School of Practice. The length of time occupied in the whole course is usually two years. The shortest period in which any pupil has completed it, is one year; while in some cases it has occupied three years.

SCHOOL OF PRACTICE.

The organization of this department of the Normal School, remains as described in my last report. Its efficiency and usefulness as an adjunct of the school, have been greater during the past year, than at any former period of its history. The examinations show the pupils to be more intelligent ;—the pupil teachers have been more successful in teaching, and return to their places as pupils, imbued with a love of their employment, and impressed with a higher estimate of the importance of the profession for which they are training, with renewed determination to perfect themselves in their art.

The excellent condition of this school and its usefulness, most strikingly exhibit the superiority of the professionally educated teacher ; who, imbued with a love for her pursuit, engages in her work with a zeal which animates her instructions and excites the enthusiasm of her pupils.

EXAMINATIONS.

The usual written examinations made during the year have given satisfactory results, and exhibit a steady improvement on the part of the pupils generally; while the high averages obtained by many, indicate a thoroughness no less encouraging to them, than gratifying to their teachers. The results of all the examinations, including that for admission, are carefully preserved, and afford the means of comparing the pupil's intelligence and progress, during the whole time of her connection with the school. The answers given, illustrate the advantages of the mode of instruction pursued in the Normal School, which habituates the student to following a train of thought, leading her to separate the main ideas from the subordinate ones, and to classify and arrange her knowledge according to natural associations; so that the suggestion of one fact, enables her readily to recall all she knows connected with the subject.

DISCIPLINE.

The self-respect, intelligence and refinement of manners of the pupils generally, exclude the necessity of any restraining influence, to which the term discipline could be properly applied. But while there is manifested to so great an extent, a regard for what is right, exhibiting itself in perfect propriety of conduct, and kind and respectful deportment in the intercourse of the pupils with each other, as well as with their teachers, yet the exceptions are sufficient to render a system of accountability and penalties for misconduct necessary. This consists in an exact registration of recitations, conduct and progress in knowledge as indicated by written examinations. Thus each pupil secures her standing in the school as the result of her own efforts; and finds her rank in the class the reward for duties well performed, or the penalty for neglect or positive misconduct.

The pupil's rank in school in regard to her class, is determined at the commencement of each term, semi-annnally; and continues to the end of it, except in cases of extraordinary excellence or extreme neglect; in the former case the pnpil is advanced, and in the latter placed in a lower class. Rank in the class is determined every month, and is regulated by the recitations, attendance and deportment. The semi-annual classification combines the monthly results, with the averages of the written examinations and practice in teaching. The snccess of this mode of discipline has been such, that after a trial of eight years, with but slight modifications, I am led to regard it as capable of but little, if any improvement.

The system is fonnd to impose all necessary restraints, by accustoming the pupil to the constant influence of fnture accountability, prodncing motives for governing her condnct by which the conscience is educated, and the habit of self-control is formed.

ATTENDANCE.

The average number belonging to the school, during the year, has been one hundred and ninety-eight, and the average daily attendance one hundred and ninety-three; making the rate of attendance more than 97 per cent. These averages are made from a daily record, including every day the school is in session, and indicate a regularity of attendance as remarkable as it is praiseworthy, when the circumstances under which many of the pupils attend school are considered; some of them having large demands upon their time in the performance of duties at home, and many residing at great distances from the school.

The time of daily attendance is five hours, and the number of recitations, six; besides the Exercises in Vocal Music, Practice in Teaching, and attendance on Lectures.

TEACHERS.

The efforts of the teachers have been crowned with the most satisfactory results; and they continue to enjoy in the highest degree the esteem and confidence of their pupils. The recitations are earnest and thorough; being characterized not only by an acquaintance with the subject as treated of in the text books, but extending beyond, and enabling the pupils to give practical illustrations of principles and rules. Thus, while knowledge is secured, the power of the learner to acquire it is greatly developed.

Besides imparting positive knowledge, it is a leading aim to direct and develop the reasoning faculties and powers of investigation, to habituate the pupils to referring things to general principles; and instead of merely memorizing facts, to trace them to their causes. By this means the pupil is qualified, and irresistibly inclined to explain all that admits of explanation. The text books therefore, are used rather as a foundation for wider research, than as complete treatises on the subjects to which they relate.

Trained in this manner, the pupils obtain such command of the knowledge they acquire and such facility in expressing it, as enables them to originate methods of explanation and instruction, and readily adapt them to the various capacities of those whom they may teach, from the first and feeble steps of the young beginner to the more confident tread of the more matured and disciplined scholar.

During the past year the school has sustained a serious loss in the retirement of Miss Mary E. Brown, who from its organization so ably conducted the Department of English Literature.

In the withdrawal of Miss Brown, the school has lost a true teacher; one who felt that there was a great work to be done, and her happiness no less than her duty led her to do that work well. Hence, an untiring zeal characterized all her efforts; she regarded every consideration of self as subordinate to the interests of her pupils, and realizing her great usefulness, she enjoyed that happiness which is known only to the real teacher. And her pupils influenced by admiration for her goodness, superior intelligence, and moral purity, and impressed by her disinterested devotion to their welfare, seemed to aim at no greater pleasure than to secure her happiness.

Miss Mary M. Spackman was selected as Miss Brown's successor. This lady graduated at the head of her class in February, 1852; and brings to her work the advantages of the instruction of her predecessor, combined with superior scholarship, energy of character and love for teaching. While a student, she was distinguished for her excellence in the Department of English Literature; being not only remarkable for the extent and accuracy of her knowledge, but also for the readiness and clearness of her illustrations. The satisfactory condition of the classes in her branches of instruction at the end of the first term of her service, justifies the estimate placed upon her ability, and gives earnest of a successful future.
